RELICS.

BY MONROE H. ROSENFELD.

A package of blue ribboned notes—
What tender thoughts they bring!
The world is full of singing birds
And life is at the Spring!
I read them over, one by one,
Before my grate to night
And think—a poor, lone bachelor—
Of days of pure delight.

Ah! how she loved me long ago!
I vowed for her I'd wait;
But Kate has many lovers now—
She joined a syndicate!
And she has wealth at her command,
Is chief among the belles;
Does she forget when I went broke
To buy her caramels?

And this is Julia's pretty screech,
She's married to an earl;
And here's her picture in pastel,
Her Titian locks in curls.
I saw her only yesterday,
Her scanty hair is dark,
And with a poodle in her lap
She rode through Central Park.

Maud, Mary, Clara, here's a lot!
Oh, where, oh, where are they?
Some figure in the front row now,
And smile at bald heads gay.
But here I am a bachelor,
So fate my lot has shaped: [say,
Who laughs last laughs the best, 'twill
Just think what I've escaped!

DR. PADLOCK'S DECEPTION.

BY RETTA LONGSTREET LONG.

Susanna and I had one child—a son—the joy and light of our eyes. Clergyman though I was, I fear the sin of idolatry was mine, and the priest was often lost in the pride of the parent. On one fateful day in June, when Edgar was nine years old, we let him go to the beach with a number of older boys, never dreaming that we ran any risk of accident, but we never saw him again. His little body drifted out into the lake and was never recovered. Yet we lived on.

Ten years glided by. June was with us again, bringing, as ever, its sad and happy memories. Susanna and I always kept Edgar's birthday by having some little boys in for tea. I had taken them home, and, as it was raining, had gone alone to the Wednesday evening meeting. Some church matters detained me, so that it was after ten when I started home.

As I walked under the trees so thickly planted on Jackson Street I suddenly became conscious that a dark figure was unpleasantly near me. The rain had ceased, so I put my closed umbrella between me and my undesirable neighbor. No sooner had I done so that I felt a stealthy hand cautiously seeking my watch. I made a quick movement and seized his wrist. Of course the man struggled, but I dragged him under the bright light at the corner of McNab Street.

"Well, my friend," I said, "I am Dr. Padlock. Is there anything I can do for you?" "Not Dr. Padlock!" exclaimed the man, and he struggled more fiercely for his freedom. "Why, he's the last man I want to see!"

"How is that?" I asked. "When you were fumbling for my watch I seemed to be the very man you wanted most."

"But I didn't know who you were then," he answered doggedly.

"What is your name?" I asked kindly. "Perhaps you are the very man I want."

"You want say that when you know who I am."

"Why, who are you?" I persisted.

"Your own son, Edgar Padlock."

"Edgar alive! A thief! Never!" I almost screamed. "Why, he was dead ten years ago today!"

"He wasn't drowned. He ran away and is just as much alive as you are, Gov'nor."

"Man, don't trifle with me," I cried.

"Tell me if you really know anything about my son?"

"I'm telling you the truth now," he said sullenly. "I ran away and I've come back today, but I didn't mean to rob my own father if I am in hard luck."

"Merciful Heavens! Could this be true? Had Edgar lived to come back like this—an uneducated tramp and thief? No, it could not be! This man was trying to blackmail me and had touched me on my tender spot. I controlled my rising excitement, therefore, and said as calmly as I could:

"What proof have you besides your bare word that you are my son?"

He fumbled at his neck and took off and handed me a very small silver locket on a slender silver chain. Ah! I recognized it as the one I had myself put around Edgar's neck the day he left us. I opened it, and Susanna's face with the tender eyes was before me.

Was she pleading for her son against my hard heart? For I admit that my whole soul turned in loathing from the man beside me. No parental yearning, no animal instinct even, seemed to claim him as my offspring. His bloated face, dogged manner, the fact that he had tried to rob me, all made it impossible to believe that he could be Edgar. I was roused by his voice:

"If you don't believe the locket, p'raps you'll believe this," and he handed me a tiny leather purse which I remembered as being one of little Edgar's birthday presents. This was a fresh shock, but, while it staggered, it did not convince me. Yet, I pondered, if he were not my son, how did he get his things?

two mortal hours! Can't you spare me a quarter?" I refused sternly, and hurried him into the house. Mrs. Dow was as kind as usual, and arrangements were soon made.

On one point I determined to satisfy myself before leaving. When he was five years old Edgar had fallen on a piece of broken glass and cut himself severely on the neck, just back of the ear. The cut never healed properly and left a queer looking three-cornered scar, and Susanna and I had often said that we could identify him anywhere by that scar. As the man who claimed to randa and looked through the open shutters into the room. Ah! it was as I thought. Susanna, weary with waiting, had fallen asleep on the large sofa, and over her the shaded lamp cast a softened glow. She was smiling, and looked so young and pretty that I stood spellbound, contrasting her sweet serenity with the nightmare in my own soul. One of her hands held Edgar's little cap, for she had the theory that if she went to sleep with something of his in her hand she would be sure to dream about him. Could I wake her from her lovely dream to tell her that her beloved son had come back, a thief, would go there, see Edgar, get talking with him, and everything would come out! What would she think of me?

"Oh, Susanna," I called, "don't go there this morning; it will take you so long. Besides, I saw Mrs. Dow last night and she was quite well."

"But I promised, dear, and the long walk will do me all the good in the world."

"There is another reason why I would rather you not go there this morning," I faltered. "I know she has boarding with her—er—rather a disreputable looking—er—tramp, and I would rather you not meet him."

"Why you know my weakness for tramps," laughed Susanna. "That will be another reason for going. Is this one young or old?"

"Rather young, I fancy, not more than twenty or so."

"Just Edgar's age!" exclaimed Susanna with a saddened expression. "Oh, Silas! I must see him. Perhaps I could say or do something to help him. Just think if Edgar had lived and gone astray and no one to care!" and there was a sob in her voice.

If Edgar had lived! These words cut me like a knife. In my selfishness and false pride I had tried to keep these two apart, when, perhaps, Providence was drawing them together for their mutual benefit. I could do no more but sank back exhausted. "Do as you think best, Susanna," I managed to say gently, and with a kiss she left me to my thoughts.

It was three o'clock when I heard the front door open, and Susanna's voice speaking softly and earnestly to some companion. She had found out all then and had brought him home! How like her to be so much braver than I! I endured a slow martyrdom as they came upstairs. Susanna came in first, and coming to the bed whispered: "Silas, dear, I took the liberty of bringing the doctor back with me—"

"Oh, come in, doctor," I cried almost joyously in my relief. "Drive this miserable lumbago away and make me feel like a boy again!"

I grasped his hand cordially, being grateful for even a moment's respite. After the doctor had gone Susanna remarked, casually: "By the way, Silas, I called at Mrs. Dow's and she begged me to tell you that the tramp you brought in last night ran away before she got up this morning, and took with him her only silver spoons and a five dollar bill she had left under the clock. So I am afraid he was rather a hopeless case, after all." I sighed, but said nothing. Was I relieved? Indubitably! Shame to me that I was, but the responsibility was taken from me for a time, and Susanna had been spared.

About a week after when I was able to be out, I made all inquiries I could, but found no trace of my poor lost son. I determined more decidedly than ever not to tell Susanna, although such a secret weighed on me fearfully and sapped my strength and spirits. Fortunately a church bazaar coming on, and her inability to get a good cook, kept Susanna too busy to pay me her usual attention, and I plunged vehemently into my parochial visiting, half hoping, I am afraid, to lose some of my own misery in witnessing that of others.

It was a cold afternoon in October and I was on my way to give a paper at the Ministerial Association, when a man stopped me on the street and handed me a letter. It was from the Mother Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital, saying that a man, calling himself John Graham, had been brought to the hospital a few days before, with a broken leg. As the man was a physical wreck, fever had set in and the doctors had no hope. He had asked for me, could I come at once? Stunned and wretched, I paid the messenger to carry my paper on to the meeting, while I literally ran all the way to St. Joseph's Hospital. I felt my heart melting with love and pity for my poor son, dying among strangers, and father and mother both away. When I saw him what a contrast to our first meeting! In a clean white bed in a darkened room, his face pale and delicate, his features sharpened and refined by suffering, he seemed a different order of being from the tramp I had met that fateful night. He was sleeping, and when the sister wretchedly I knelt by the bed and gazed, yearningly on my poor Edgar's face. My true fatherly feelings had awakened at last—at last when it was too late! I would have given the world now to have him spared—to have Susanna with me.

After a time he stirred and opened his eyes. I thought he seemed to recognize me, although too weak to speak. I whispered to him tenderly, calling him my dear son and begging him to call me "father." He smiled faintly, but could not speak. He touched me with the hand nearest me and told me with his eyes to take the locket and the little purse it held. I took them reverently and put them in my breast. Some day I would give them to Susanna and tell her all.

I had come none too soon. Poor Edgar was sinking rapidly. I called the sisters

Had he found and robbed the little body years ago?

"Well, my friend," I said at last, "I tell you honestly that I am not at all convinced that you are my son. If I were I would take you to my own house."

"Oh, I don't want to go to your house," he interrupted. "I don't want my mother to know that I'm alive. Promise me that you'll never let her know how I came back."

"I must wait to see what is best," I answered sadly, "but meanwhile I know you are cold and hungry, so I will see you comfortable for the night before I leave you."

Shall I ever forget that long dreary walk down John Street, North, near the bay? The rain was pouring again, but I knew of no better place to take him for the night than to the house of a poor widow who lived there. Just before entering Mrs. Dow's door I said to my companion:

"I do not wish you to be called 'Padlock' in Hamilton. Suppose you take the name of John Graham until everything is settled."

"That'll suit me all right," he answered, readily; "I don't care much what I'm called, but look here, gov'nor," and he caught my arm familiarly. "I haven't had a drink for be my son turned his back to me for a moment I scanned his neck narrowly in the full light—the scar was there!

An icy cold hand seemed to clutch my heart. This, then, was my son, and I, oh, Heavens! I would have given worlds if he had not come back! I had often dreamed of how delightful it would be to have a grown up son, but this was so wretched, so different, I could not face it and act a fatherly or christian part. It was not only that his clothes were soiled and ragged, that his hair was unkempt and his manners unpolished—all these could have been excused and rectified, but it was the low, brutal expression of his face, the common, vulgar tone of his voice, the absence of all delicacy and sensibility that actually appalled me! A wave of sorrow swept over me, but I am afraid it was sorrow for myself. I determined to go home and think the matter over quietly before taking any definite step, so I forced myself to speak calmly and took my leave, promising to come back early the next morning.

Susanna generally waited up for me in the back parlor, with a dainty little supper all prepared. I came gently on the side ve-a drunkard, an uneducated tramp? No; God forgive me if I did wrong, but I could not do it! When I thought of her lovely resignation, her cheerful unselfishness, I could not break her heart again. So I determined to let her sleep on, while I crept through the kitchen and up the back stairs to bed. With aching head and aching heart I got quietly to bed and slept so heavily that I never knew when Susanna came up.

The next morning, as fate would have it, I awoke too ill to rise. Every bone vibrated with pain and every nerve palpitated in sympathy. Just as I was wondering what message I could send to Mrs. Dow and Edgar Susanna came in, all dressed for the street.

"Oh, Silas, dear!" she exclaimed, "I am so glad you are awake at last, but I hope you will excuse me for running away from you. I am already late for my district visiting. I brought you up your tea and toast, but must ask you to rest in bed until I come back. Goodbye!"

"Where are you going first?" I asked.

"I must go first to see poor Mrs. Dow, on John Street, North. She will think it so strange I did not come last week."

My heart fairly stood still! Susanna and remained until all was over. After making arrangements for the simple funeral to be held the next afternoon I wrote a note to Susanna, telling her that I was going to Toronto unexpectedly and that I would not be home until seven o'clock the next night.

Well, I came back the next day and felt and acted as though in a dream. How much we can bear and yet live on! In the twenty years of my ministry I had conducted many funerals of many kinds, but this was the most dreadfully sad of them all. To bury my own son under an assumed name in a pauper's grave, and Susanna not there to bear, as she always did, more than half the pain!

When it was over I was too ill to walk, too heart-sick to return home to Susanna. Her loving scrutiny would break down my self control and I could not tell her yet, so I called a cab, drove to an hotel, engaged a room and lay down for an hour. I then got up, took a cup of strong tea, and felt able to walk home, just as dusk was coming on.

As I neared the house I noticed a group of people at the gate, all discussing some subject with great animation. A tall, handsome youth stood near Susanna.

She had her hand on his arm and seemed perfectly absorbed in looking at him and talking to him. "Her nephew from Detroit," I thought. As I drew nearer in the uncertain light, she recognized me and ran toward me, crying out, "Oh, Silas! Our Edgar has come back!" He was not drowned after all, but was taken away—oh come—but before she could finish I lay prone at my real son's feet!

PREPARED FOR THE OPENING.

Nearly Everything in Readiness for the Pan-American Exposition.

A new booklet, just issued for the Exposition, tells a very charming story of its history and creation and describes the beautiful city in which the festival has been developed and brought to completion. The booklet is embellished with many illustrations, including twelve colored plates of Exposition buildings and views. These will be sent free to applicants by the Bureau of Publicity so long as the edition lasts. All the principal buildings of the Exposition have been completed for some time. The installation of exhibits began many weeks ago, and there is every reason to expect that the Exposition will soon have a standard paper finish—a remarkable achievement, indeed, considering the unfavorable weather and the history of other expositions in this regard. Some of the afterthoughts, such as State buildings, will not be done till about May 20, which is to be Dedication Day.

Everyone who has visited the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition during the last few months has been astonished beyond expression upon beholding the magnitude and the exceptional beauty and novelty of the enterprise. It is every much larger than people generally have supposed, and it is apparent that the $10,000,000, which is the approximate cost of the Exposition as a whole, has been expended most wisely and with the happiest results. The particular novelty that is to be noted in this exposition is discovered in the fact that in its exterior aspect it is a radical departure from former expositions. The buildings are arranged upon a harmonious and well developed plan, producing court settings and vistas of very charming character. The use of molded staff work and decorative sculpture upon the buildings and at all salient points within the courts, the liberal employment of hydraulic and fountain features, the floral and garden effects, the exquisite colorings of buildings and architectural ornaments, and the illumination of the whole with more than 300,000 electric lamps, combine to make a picture of unsurpassed loveliness. The musical features are also of great importance and interest. The exhibit divisions are very complete and embrace the gamut of industrial, scientific and artistic activities of the people of the Western Hemisphere. The Midway, claimed to be the greatest in the world, has more than a mile of frontage. The restaurant features are perfect and the Exposition, so far as human ingenuity and the wise expenditure of money can accomplish such work, is complete to the last detail.

Buffalo, too, is an ideal city for an exposition, having a Summer climate that is tempered by the breezes from Lake Erie and, therefore, the most comfortable in which one may enjoy his Summer outing. The people of the city have prepared themselves in a most ample way to entertain millions of guests during the Exposition. The private dwellings throughout the city have been thrown open to the public and, in view of the ample accommodations, very low rates will prevail, so that every visitor may have such accommodations as he is willing to pay for. He may have the palatial quarters of the fine hotels, or the quiet restfulness of a pleasant home. The average rate for accommodations near the Exposition grounds, with 25c to 50c added for breakfast, it being expected that guests will take their other meals upon the Exposition grounds. A number of responsible companies have organized to find accommodations for visitors at any price they may desire to pay. The offices of these companies are centrally located and this system of management promises to bring very satisfactory results to all concerned.

MADE ADAMS.

Whose portrait adorns the front page of this issue, needs no introduction to our readers, nor is it necessary to mention in detail the various successes of her career. Beginning as a child, she had won much fame upon the stage prior to 1892, when she became leading woman for John Drew, a position which she filled with credit until 1897, when she made her stellar debut in "The Little Minister." This season she has met with great success in "L'Aiglon," although she has competed with Sarah Bernhardt in the same play. Miss Adams is deservedly one of the most popular women upon the stage. She is a typical American, full of energy and ambition, fond alike of sport and of work, possessed of a keen sense of humor, frank and breezy in style, yet withal gentle, kindly and rich in all the charms of character and demeanor which give assurance of noble womanhood.

Pennsylvania Railroad Summer Excursion Tickets to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and other Summer Resorts.

On April 30, 1901, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company placed on sale Summer excursion tickets to Buffalo on account of the Pan-American Exposition, and to Niagara Falls.

On May 1, 1901, the regular Summer excursion tickets to all the principal Summer resorts east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo were placed on sale at ticket offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

These tickets will bear the usual Summer excursion limit of October 31, 1901, except that the Niagara Falls tickets will be good to return until November 30, 1901.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Summer Excursion Route Book for 1901 will be issued, as heretofore, on June 1.

No matter how good an actor or actress may be in a part, they often find it difficult to please every audience in a role that has been well played by a predecessor.

Broadhurst Bros., obtaining the rights of Collier's "The Man from Mexico," starred Geo. Boniface Jr. most successfully last season. Here was a case where an exceedingly good actor followed an exceedingly good predecessor who had created the title role, giving his own almost inimitable characterization, thus making it doubly difficult for another to please in the same part. Especially so was it, as Broadhurst's production went over some of the same territory which Collier had visited.

Boniface "made good" though in every particular, thus justifying the Broadhursts' wisdom in their selection of a star.

A faithful companion in all Boniface's travels, is a pet bull-dog, well known from one end of the "alley" to the other. With an eye to introducing some novelty, he trained this fine specimen of caninity in a part for "The Man from Mexico," so as to appear with him in the scene where he "returns from Mexico," or in reality, Blackwell's Island. The dog never failed to score a hit.

In some of the theatres where Collier had previously played "The Man—," Boniface would hear discussions among the stage hands, (those dear good souls who have always a kindly (?) remark for those who are doing their best) relative to the comparative ability of Collier and Boniface in the character. On one such occasion, one of these self-appointed critics noting that Boniface had heard some of their remarks, said to him: "Well, Mr. Boniface, you ain't bad, but you ain't Collier."

To which the star answered:—"I may not be as good an actor as Collier, but he couldn't touch my dog in the part."

John Maguire, formerly manager of the Opera House at Butte, Mont., and who is perhaps better known as "the man who never answers letters or telegrams," bore a most striking resemblance to Lawrence Barrett, the well known tragedian.

Mr. Maguire's life was full of the thrilling and interesting incidents which were the accompaniment of most of the earlier experiences in the far West. After visiting various mining camps, he finally landed in Butte, where with his charming personality, and reputation as an actor, he soon enlisted the friendship and capital of several men in that young town.

After due deliberation it was finally decided to build an Opera House in the place, and put the management into the hands of Mr. Maguire. In the West, they have a fashion of doing many things very differently to what they do in the East,—and the celebration after the erection of the big play house was a wildly grand affair. A barbecue lasting a week was a part of it. At the end of that time, the House was opened with a benefit for the new manager.

During the evening's performance, Mr. Maguire recited that grand and familiar poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Now at that time, he spoke with the faintest suspicion—a most delicious suspicion—of a brogue. It is almost impossible to write it, without giving too broad a pronunciation, besides it could only be detected in a word here and there.

After the recitation, in answer to most tumultuous applause, he stepped to the footlights and began this speech: "Ladies and Gentlemen: From the bottom of my heart I thank you for this warm expression of approbation, which I've the honor of receiving at your hands. While I have many other recitations which I feel assured you would approve of, I will instead, make an announcement which will be of equal interest.

"You all know that this magnificent Temple of Theatricals has been erected for your especial pleasure, and in order to give you a foretaste of what's in store for you, I wish to announce that at great expense I've engaged the famous tragedian, Mr. Lawrence Barrett and his great company for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

"With a thought of the immense expense attached to this undertaking, I will briefly state that the prices on the ground floor will be $1.50, on the balcony $1.00 and in the gallery, 50 cents."

There was a hush, when suddenly from the gallery rang out a clear but troubled voice from an urchin, who evidently still had in mind the recent recitation "The Charge of the Light Brigade," for he aptly quoted in painful accents,—

"An' oh,—the wild charge he made!"

During the tour of the first season of the Fredk Warde and Louis James Combination, the company carried from six to eight complete productions, the paraphernalia of which, had been purchased from the Booth-Barrett estate.

In the employ of the management was a most ambitious press agent, who felt it his duty to enthuse at all times, even enlarging upon minor details entrusted to his exploitation, in such a manner as to sometimes bring blushes to the cheeks of the co-stars, who were nothing if not modest.

During a protracted engagement in a Western city, a banquet was tendered the tragedians, and to it the assiduous press agent was invited. Just before going to the banquet room, Mr. Warde called him aside and said:—

"Look here old man, while I admire your ability and enthusiasm regarding your showing up the companies and plays in the brightest lights, I can't quite stand your out-and-out lying,—especially in my presence. Now, in future when we happen to be with people at the same time, and you feel called upon to express anything in your capacity as agent, be careful and don't go over the limit,—for if you do, I'll cough and you'll have to subsidize."

That night during the progress of the banquet, the diligent press agent sat next to a guest who knew very little concerning things theatrical. The gentleman in a spirit of curiosity asked how much scenery they carried on tour. Here was the long looked for opportunity for the hitherto silent agent. He began and expatiated most enthusiastically over the series of magnificent productions, &c. Then came a fatal question from the listener:—

"And at the end of the season, what disposition do you make of all this immense property?"

The ever-ready agent promptly replied:—"We have a building in Brooklyn specially erected for that purpose. It has a frontage of 115 feet, a depth of 220 feet, and—just at this point Warde coughed, and the subdued agent tamely finished,—and a foot and a half high."

I was told the other day that Lloyd Bingham—the husband of Amelia Bingham began the accumulation of his present fortune with $1,400, only.

Being of a friend of Duke, the great tobacco king, he of course had inside information relative to the market ups and downs of the "weed."

Favoring winds wafted the smoke in his direction, and when it lifted there were $200,000 to the credit of the fortunate speculator.

When "The Climbers" was produced, Mr. Bingham placed aside the sum of $50,000, to back the play—but it was never touched. The bills contracted for the production did not begin to be presented till the play was making enough to settle them,—and it made big money from the very start.

So it may be said, that virtually, the play started without any expenditure, and has since more than paid for itself.

"Tom" Wise, the well known comedian, while playing this season in Boston, was joined there by his wife who had traveled a long distance to be with him during the holidays.

Mr. Wise gave a big supper to the company one evening, and to quote from Shakespeare, "wine flowed and tongues wagged." Jennie Yeomans and two or three others of the company were near the host's end of the table, and after using up all the familiar toasts known to the profession, they started in on high flown French pledges.

Those at the lower end of the table listened with wide open eyes and ears to the unfamiliar language, and not understanding the flowery phrases felt sort of "out of it," and did not join in every time. Finally the manager, at the first lull in the jubilation, raised his glass towards the guest seated next him, and looking triumphantly at those at the other end of the table, as if to say he could speak French too, said:—

"Well Jack,—here's Camembert!"

To which Jack, taking his cue, fired back his toast, in victorious voice:—

"Fromage de Brile!"

They ceased at the upper end of the table to indulge in French.

News of the Game.

We note in Bristol Mercury, of Bristol, England, of recent date, that H. S. Openheim, of the Bristol Club, desires to arrange a friendly match of twenty games with some player. In an issue of a paper published at Dawson City, Alaska, we note that S. H. Yeomans is making it lively for the players up there. Then we remember that 's was only a few years ago that Yeomans and Openheim were at the head of Y. M. C. A. teams of checker players in New York, and so time works its changes. The A. C. Z. for May is on deck, with a picture of Dr. S. D. Woods, of Connellsville, Pa., and lots of good checkers. John T. Denver gives some nice single corner play, and Wm. Veal gives some extended analysis. Taking it all in all, we think that it is one of the best numbers ever issued and shows the result of earnest, careful work on the part of its editor, L. M. Stearns. At present there is no information obtainable regarding the doings and whereabouts of Harry Freedman. There seems to be a general disposition of late to pound him in the different checker journals throughout the country. The fact should be taken into consideration that Harry is young, in a strange country, and that there is no restraining influence over him. It is indeed too true that he has cut off all efforts of the New Yorkers to better his lot, but just because he has struck the tologban is no reason why many should take the occasion to give him an extra push. Let us not be too harsh with the young man. He may yet realize his mistakes and reinstate himself. We hope the latter, at any rate. So Horn did do the doctor. We hope that Mr. Horn will find it convenient to come in our vicinity again. We promise to give him ample opportunity to repeat the performance. He, a winner, can have some more money prizes, as we are not convinced of his across board superiority over the doctor. We would be very much pleased to see the Buffalo expert in New York in the near future.

To Correspondents.

C. Q. DE FRANCE.—Accept our thanks for interesting contributions, most especially the last one, as soon as the present rush is over, will examine them.

WM. SCHAEFER.—Thanks for solutions and good opinions; you have no cause to feel abashed at the non-solution of those problems, you are in right worshipful company. BRO. SPENCER.—Another tribute to the solidity of "The Phoenix." What a storm of intellectual shot and shell has been poured upon that castle! Yet its ramparts stand scarcely chipped, and its flag defiantly unrolls above the smoke with scarcely a rent or stain in its folds.

WM. A. SHINKMAN.—Request complied with, as far as we had the material at disposal. We are much concerned at not having a better report of your health.

P. RICHARDSON.—Heartily thanks for new contribution. As a rule, we disregard problems which have on express stipulation; but this one is peculiarly suited to the occasion.

F. B. PHELPS.—Thanks for letter and solution.

BRO. GRAHAM.—Thanks for complimentary assurance; the "condensing" will be held up till you decide. "Checkmates" came duly.

J. MILLER, Dallas, Texas.—An opinion, even if we had time to form and write one out, would be useless in a game so little advanced. The position should have been on a diagram.

PROF. WILLARD FISKE, Florence, Italy.—This Icelandic magazine is a prize curiosity, thank you, as doubly welcome as showing your kindly remembrance after forty long years of "checklessness" to you.

F. H. CURTIS.—You'll see something to "top off" on pretty soon.

OMNIUM GATHERUM.—We have written to several correspondents on matters too elaborate for our space here; hope none have been omitted.

"I fought a good fight, but it proved not good enough," said Blackburne as he rose from the table.

(a) Not the move in the text before us, but evidently correct. The onrush of Black's R. P. caused quite a flutter for a time, but it only proved a march to his execution.

(b) Now appears the theoretical ending, two B's vs. two K's, which is a sort of delicately balanced end game will be pleased to examine.

MANAGER JOHN H. WILLS reports that he is now booking for Governor's Pavilion, Atlantic City, N. J. They are making larger and elaborate alterations, which is turning the place into a very palace of loveliness, at a cost of $25,000. It will still retain the reputation of being the leading family resort of Atlantic City. The grand opening will take place May 27 with twenty-five strong specialties, including both European and American novelties. After the performance, night of May 29, there will be a grand banquet, at which covers will be set for 1,000 guests.

NED NELSON has joined hands with Fred Siddons, and the team has some good bookings ahead of Summer parks.

CARL HERMANN, violinist, has been very ill with pneumonia, and was compelled to give up work for a few weeks.

HUME and LESLIE are at the Gaiety Theatre, Troy, N. Y., this week, with Parkersburg, W. Va.; Salem, W. Va.; Olenburg Park, Columbus, and Robinson Park Theatre, Ft. Wayne, Ind., to follow.

THE TWO HEWITTS, Emma and Fred, re-voicing globe, play Coney Island, Cincinnati, the opening week, May 26.

JONES and SUTTON played the Howard Theatre, Boston, week of April 29, with Providence and Philadelphia to follow.

MASTER WILLIE WESTON has formed a partnership with Mike Rose, the Hebrew comedian, and will introduce a sketch, entitled "Money to Burn." They will play parks during the Summer.

THE ECHER SISTERS have signed with Rice & Barton's Co. for the coming season.

WILL G. WILLIAMS, formerly of Williams and Hood, but now of the team of Williams and Poole, song illustrators, was compelled to lay off on account of illness. He is now spending a few weeks with friends at Waynesburg, O., but will probably be able to resume work by the first of June.

BLANCHE YROMAN is at Put-In-Bay, where in Toronto, and Edward Clark has entered into partnership with Louis Bates to produce an act with Herbert Ashton Brooks, entitled "In Hot Water," in which an imitation of Rose Melville, as Sis Hopkins, figures.

THE CAMPBELL BROS.' GREAT CONSOLIDATED SHOW NOTES.—We opened our season at Fairbury, Neb., April 27. The weather was fair and the show did a great business, the capacity of the tent being tested afternoon and night. The performance was highly appreciated, and went like clock work under the capable direction of Les Greer, the equestrian director. Dock Campbell, the business manager of the show, was particularly busy. The parade was a glittering pageant from the band wagon to the caliope, which was played by Bud Horn. The parade included a dog and cat show, a great applause, as did almost every act that went in the ring. Among the principal performers are: The Mizuno family of oriental acrobats, Rydon and Nelson, troupe of four acrobats and bar performers; Smith, the head balancer; the Bradons, Del Fuego and a number of other clowns kept the audience in uproar. The riding of Alex Lowande and John Rooney was of the best, and highly appreciated. J. C. O'Brien is license adjuster, and also has a number of privileges. Les Greer is manager of the side show, and Abe Crockett has the candy stands.

RUSSELL'S BIG VAUDEVILLE CIRCUS NOTES.—We opened at Kalama, Wash., April 22, to a packed tent, notwithstanding the heavy rain. We carry thirty-two pieces, all told, with band of twelve pieces, under the leadership of Prof. C. R. A. Hohmann. Following are the performers: The Four Princes, Marco Bros., Sig. Piri, The Great Atlas, Whitmore and Lozell, La Meer Bros., the Laramie Sisters, Lein Russell, Baby Gladie, Percy Davidson, J. F. Walsh. We are playing along the Columbia River by steamboats. Will catch our train of cars at South Bend, Wash., May 1. We carry a 70ft. round top, with 30ft. middle piece, through Puget Sound to British Columbia, Eastern Wash., Idaho, and Oregon. Everything about the show is entirely new. Business staff: E. S. Russell, proprietor and manager; Will U. Sterling, general agent.

THE CAMP THIS SEASON with the Walter L. Main Shows will be first class in every respect, we are informed. Everything will be new, neat and modern. The new Pullman sleepers have arrived and everybody is pleased with the comfortable quarters they will have with this show. The opening day was May 4.

NOTES FROM RING BROS.' SHOWS.—We have just secured Van Amburg & Gallagher's Wagon Show, which we intend to consolidate with our own, the Ring Bros. We will then have one of the largest and finest wagon shows on the road this season. Show will open at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., May 16, which is Van Amburg & Gallagher's Winter quarters.

BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST ROSTER of car No. 2. Alf Rio, car manager; Tom Draufeld, superintendent of excursion; W. Shen, boss bill poster; excursion agents, H. A. Morrison, Geo. Green and F. Martin; C. Ross, car porter.

NOTES FROM THE W. H. SCOTT'S BIG SHOWS.—Everything is rapidly nearing completion at Winter quarters. Mr. Scott has severed his connection with Mr. Burdick and puts the show out alone. He has enlarged the show, having purchased the entire outfit of the Louis Crescent Show. The latest features added are "The Two Maroons," the Three Lanes, and the Brodys (James and Kitty). All are anxiously looking for the opening date, May 11, at Madison, O.

INDIANA.

EVANSVILLE.—The Grand Opera House (T. J. Groves, manager) was crowded from pit to dome April 25, to see Stuart Robson and his excellent supporting company, in "She Stoops to Conquer." Richard Mansfield is the attraction for May 10, presenting "Henry V." This will close the season at the Grand.

THE PEOPLE'S THEATRE (T. J. Groves, manager) was well filled April 28, despite unusually warm weather, with an enthusiastic audience to see "Down Mobile."

THE GENTRY DOG AND PONY SHOW attracted large crowds for four performances, 29-30, and turned people away. Buffalo Bill's Wild West is booked for May 11. Harry Wright is making elaborate preparations for attractions at Cook's Park and numerous street fairs to be held near this city. Col. Tom Groves is still seriously ill and confined to his bed. His affairs are in the hands of Joe Burk, secretary and treasurer of the Grand and People's.

CRIMMINS AND GORE.

Here's another view of this comedy duo, in characters presented by them in their new act, "Like Mother Used to Make." The restaurant keeper in conversation with Bowers Lutz furnishes spasms of laughter throughout, and the contrast with subsequent changes is striking indeed. This new act, which Crimmins and Gore have brought forth, caused considerable comment from public and performers alike. Dan Crimmins, in his quiet way, hunted around until he found some one who had a few ideas. This writer had never turned out a low comedy act, and declared he was off the track whenever he started to do that sort of work but Mr. Crimmins insisted, and the result was "What Mother Used to Make." The author followed Crimmins and Gore for two weeks, watching them work in the old act, and considering how best to fit them. Finally, being satisfied that he could take chances permitting them to do some character bits, he went to work. His one idea was to do anything that resembled any other act, and although this act was experimental, being so far off the beaten track, the authors' idea of the wants of vaudeville were correct, and a hit was the result. Not only did he contribute a worthy act, but he struck a new idea in stage setting. Furthermore, he gave Crimmins and Gore an opportunity of showing themselves to be character actors of considerable ability. Rosa Gore, in particular, has been made more valuable by the new act. Hitherto few people suspected her of having the ability to so perfectly interpret two such widely different characters. The act is a new achievement, although the author has achieved success before, is particularly proud of having done the very thing that he believed he could not do.

WALTER STETSON

Was born Jan. 25, 1876, in Washington, D. C., and as a child appeared at many entertainments in specialties and soon gained local reputation. He began his professional career in 1892, playing a child part with the Agnes Huntington Co., in "Paul Jones." In 1893 he joined the Elsie Leslie Co., playing a child part in "The Prince and the Pauper." 1894-5 he played small parts with Joseph Jefferson, in "Tip Van Winkle," "Lent Me Your Socks," and "Crickets on the Hearth." He then went on a short season with Stetson's "Hayseed Sport" Co., playing the title role. In 1896 he played vaudeville dates through the South and East, introducing his Silly Boy, Irish and Negro specialties. Also in 1896 he played "The Wolf Hopper" reciting "Casey at the Bat." Season of 1896-7 he played old man parts with Lawrence Hanley's Co., among the members of which were Mrs. Frank Tannehill Sr., Eleanor Carey and the late H. Coulter Brinker. In 1897-8 he played character and juvenile parts with the Stella Beauchamp Co., and was re-engaged for her second European tour, 1898-9, but, receiving a better offer from the Donnelly Stock Co., he accepted the latter, playing a diversified line of parts and displaying his versatility. The young heroic lead, the part of Frank Kennett, in "The Great Diamond Robbery," was one of the most successful engagements of Mr. Stetson during this engagement. In 1900 he was for a time soloist of the choir at Trinity P. E. Church, Washington, after which he returned to vaudeville, presenting his comedy sketch, "I Want to Know," assisted by Miss Forester. In 1901 he joined Mildred Le Marr, and is now presenting his rural comedy sketch, "Reuben's Dilemma," at the leading vaudeville houses.

The company will leave for Chicago in their own special palace cars immediately after the performance, where the members will separate, some to go to the Pan-American, others to rest for the Summer, and a few to fill Summer engagements. The company, numbering thirty-one people, has been out thirty-six weeks and covered a distance of 12,361 miles. We left Medina, N. Y., Sept. 4, going through Canada, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota. Manager Downie McPhee will have five companies on the road next season, three repertory companies (which will open in Duluth about Aug. 26) and two one night stand attractions. Uniformed bands and orchestras will be carried with the repertory company, which will be equipped with two 70ft. cars. FROM OTHER POINTS.

"A Fixed Race" Received Its First Production at the Bijou, Chicago, on May 5, and Made a Good Impression.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

CHICAGO, May 7.—The week opened with varying attendance, but with the general average good. Daniel Sully, in "The Parish Priest," opened at the Grand Sunday, to small audience. Play opened, however, and last night's attendance was better. Mary Manning began in "Janice Meredith" at Illinois last night, with comfortably filled house. "A Fixed Race" drew two large audiences at the Bijou Sunday, and the new play made a big hit. "Sherlock Holmes," another play new here, was put on by the Hopkins Stock, who made the best of the opportunities. Initial audiences were large.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" drew well at both Alhambra and Haymarket. Debaron stock began with good business. The three thousandth performance of "The Christian" was celebrated at McVicker's last night by distribution of souvenirs. Audience was big.

Castle Square celebrated its sixth anniversary with comfortably filled house at Studebaker. Ward and Vokes held over to excellent business at Great Northern.

"Woman in Black" drew big audiences Sunday to the Bijou, and almost as good business last night. C. A. Gardner began well at Criterion. Chicago Opera House, where Weber & Fields attracted an immense crowd. Performance was all that was anticipated and the audience was enthusiastic.

"The Burgomaster" at the Broad, "Bob White" at the Chestnut, "The Governor's Son" at the Walnut, and "The Dairy Farm" at the Park were continued attractions and did splendidly. Large audience at the Auditorium gave Cole and Johnson a cordial greeting.

"An Actor's Romance" drew well at the National and proved a capital attraction. Good sized audience enjoyed the performance of "A Still Alarm" at the People's. Stock house productions, including opera at the Grand, all did nicely. Exceptionally strong bill at Keith's Opera House, which immediately drew a large audience at the burlesque houses had stimulating effect upon patronage. Eleven Museum and other houses participated in the general prosperity.

BOSTON, May 7.—"Unhatched Friend," at the Tremont, was the most attractive novelty in town last night and drew out a representative first night audience. Francis Wilson opened a return week at the Boston Museum, in "The Monks of Malabar," to a good house. Williams and Walker had a crowd at the Park, where they presented "The Sons of Ham" for the first time here.

Joseph Jefferson's "Rip" received its customary cordial welcome at the Boston Theatre. Anne Russell's third week, in "A Royal Family," at the Colonial, opened to fine business, as did "The Rogers Brothers" in Central Park, at the Hollis, where there were no seats to spare. "A Night Off" was the bill at the Castle Square and "Wicked London" at the Bowdoin Square.

Kelth's star was La Presa. The Russell Brothers led a strong bill at Music Hall. Excellent business and fine weather prevailed.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—"A Runaway Girl" opened the supplementary season last night at the Columbia, to a very large and well pleased audience. "The Casino Girl" opened at the National for the last week of that house's season, the auditorium being well filled. Robert Hillman and company, in "The Littlest Girl," was the top liner of an excellent bill at the New Grand two large audiences being well pleased yesterday. "Miss Hobbs" was the offering at the Lafayette Square by the stock last night, and the house was comfortably filled. Frank R. Carr's Indian Maidens gave two fine performances at the Lyceum, to good sized audiences. The Ringling Brothers' Great Shows opened a two days' exhibition yesterday, with an immense and very creditable stock parade. The spacious tents were crowded both afternoon and night.

MILWAUKEE, May 7.—The attendance at all of the local theatres yesterday was quite large, in spite of the fact that the weather was pleasant and there were many out door attractions. The Castle Square Opera Co. opened its last week to capacity of the Pabst. The Hadley Stock Co., at the Bijou, and the Thannouster Stock, at the Academy, also opened to packed houses. The Thannouster players supported Melburn McDowell, in a magnificent production of "Cleopatra." Grace Mae Lamkin was especially good as Cleopatra. At the Alhambra the usual Sunday crowd was present to witness "The Girl from Chilly." The Victoria Burlesque, at the Columbia, played to big audiences. Stuart Robson, with his interesting performance of "She Stoops to Conquer," made a pronounced hit at the Davidson Sunday night.

CINCINNATI, May 7.—Only three houses remain open in Cincinnati. The Columbia was jammed. Adelaide Herrmann was the top liner at Heck's. Zelma Herman and Willis Granger appeared in "The Plasterer's Wife" to good business. Matt Flynn's Big Sensation, with "The Girl in Blue," as an added attraction, did well at People's. Buffalo Bill's Wild West drew the crowds Monday night.

ST. LOUIS, May 7.—The duldest week in the year from the theatrical standpoint is now on. The Summer Gardens and at fresco theatres will open 12; meanwhile, except for very good vaudeville bill at the Columbia, headed by Wayne and Caldwell, Gus Williams and Howard's pony circus, and one of Carter's most sensational efforts at Haymarket, entitled "Down Mobile," there is nothing doing.

KANSAS CITY, May 7.—The usual Sunday business was in evidence at the openings which were: "At Valley Forge," at the Grand; Marie Walworth and a good vaudeville bill, at the Orpheum; "Puddhead Wilson," by the Woodward Stock Co., at the Auditorium; and "The Fire Patrol," by the Andrew Stock Co., at the Calliope.

LOUISVILLE, May 7.—"Con Hollow" was the attraction for the final week of the season at the Avenue, opening Sunday to crowded houses. "The Utopians," at the Buckingham, opened Sunday to packed houses.

ALABAMA.

BIRMINGHAM.—This town, clothed in royal purple and white, and in every avenue and street long streamers and hundreds of flags proclaim the success of the Elks' Street Fair. OHIO.

Cincinnati.—The seasons are mixed in their dates. Spring has not appeared to do her welcome turn. There has been a jump from Winter to Summer, and the frigidities of a fortnight ago have been succeeded by the torridity of the dog days. The weather has had a swinging effect upon the theatrical folk, while it has cheered the hearts of the director generals of the outdoor amusement enterprises. Corps of workmen are getting things into shape at Chester Park, Coney Island, the Zoo and Ludlow Lagoon. The indoor season is almost over. The Walnut Street is the last to close. One more week sees the 1900-01 finish of the Columbia, and if Old Sol keeps up his flirtation with Mamma Earth both Heck's and the People's are likely to drop their curtains.

COLUMBIA THEATRE. (M. C. Anderson, manager).—For the closing week of the season a splendid bill is offered. Madame Hermann is the top liner May 5, in "A Night in Japan." Willis P. Sweetman, Montrell, Barry and Halvers, Ellsworth and Hart, Kelly and Violette, Duffy, Sawtelle and Duffy, and Monroe, Mack and Laurence are also booked. Last week's offering was pleasing. Willard Simms and Almoe Angeles gave a lively sketch. Winter, one of the sweetest little creatures in vaudeville, repeated her earlier success, and critics bespoke for her a bright future along more serious lines. Jules Levy recalled old times, when he was lionized by musical Cincinnati. Business ruled fairly good. The house closed 11.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE. (Harry Ralston and John H. Havlin, managers).—The supplemental season did not last long. It began and ended with Al. W. Martin's presentation of "The Little Town's Cabin." William Barlow was cast as the old martyr of the days before the war. The Marshall family of cake walkers joined the show here, and were billed as extensively as the bloodhounds and ox carts. Business good. The house closed.

HECK'S OPERA HOUSE. (Henck, Fennessy & Stair, managers).—The Herman Granger Stock Co. will present "The Planter's Wife" 5, with Selma Herman in the role which Mand Granger made famous. Last week "Paul Kravus" and "The Planter's Wife" were warmly welcomed by the old constituency of the days of the Star stock. Among the members of the company were: Gilbert Ely, Walter Stanhope, Ernest Rostwick, Walter Scott, Bart Wallace, Walter Chester, Paul Barnett, Clifford Standish, George Haskins, Harry E. Rudolph, J. H. Stokes, Thomas M. Meeks, Edna G. Brothers and Anne La Velle. "Norddeck" 12.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE. (Henck & Fennessy, managers).—Matt J. Flynn's Big Musical Burlesques will come 5, to offer "The Watermelon Trust" and "The Queen of the Opium Palace." Last week Louis Robie's Knickerbockers did a good business despite the heat, which wasn't quite as hot as the show. The house closed 12.

ROBINSON'S OPERA HOUSE. (H. J. Rosenthal, manager).—The Rosenthal Stock Company's presentation of "Woman Against Woman" last week was one of the best of the company has given. Play was nicely staged and well interpreted. Gus Forbey, Marie Van Tassel, Wilbur Mack and Lawrence Harbour assuming important roles. The house closed 4. Rehearsals for the Columbus season commence at the Buckeye capital 20.

HECK'S WONDER WORLD. (Will S. Heck, manager).—The season ended 5, the third under the management and proprietorship of Will S. Heck. Manager Heck has succeeded in putting what was assumed to be a broken down institution on its feet. He has a long lease of the premises and will re-open Sept. 1. Many radical changes will be made before that time. Some strong attractions have already been booked for next season. During the Summer Manager Heck will have his hands full. He is connected with Coney Island and is amusement manager of the Fall Festival, which will put on the biggest exposition and midway ever presented in this part of the country. In addition to these enterprises he is to handle a number of street fairs in the Ohio Valley and has just closed a contract for a carnival at Alexandria, in the Indiana gas belt.

GOSSETT OF THE LOBBY.—Buffalo Bill's Wild West, driven from the bottoms by the flood, will exhibit at Norwood May 25. "Little Winona" will be in appearance in a sketch, entitled "My Affinity," next season. The Boston Lyric Opera Co. ran the gauntlet of attachments before starting for Baltimore. Col. W. J. Thompson put his cases into the hands of the lawyers. A testimonial benefit is to be given at the Columbia 12, for George Schoettle and Smiley Walker, members of the Columbia family. Frank Burt is to supply the vaudeville talent for Chester Park this season. The vaudeville theatre opens 26, but the opera company will not be heard until late in June. College Club girls presented "The Shoemaker's Holiday" at the Auditorium 4, for the benefit of the Social Settlement.

Cleveland.—The warm weather is late in coming, and in consequence the theatres are still doing nicely. The Summer resorts are beginning to bestir themselves, and Manhattan Beach, with many improvements and additions, will open May 25. Euclid Beach Park, which, it was at first thought, would be closed, will be opened May 30 by the Humphrey Pop Corn Co., who pay a yearly rental of $12,000. No admission will be charged to the grounds. The theatre will again be opened, and side shows and amusement features are expected to attract attendance.

OPERA HOUSE. (A. P. Hartz, manager).—A very artistic and satisfactory engagement indeed was that of Mary Manning, in "Janice Meredith," which, on April 22, was "Have and Have Not," the bill May 6. Nat C. Goodwin and Miss Elliott, in "The Merchant of Venice," play one night, May 18.

LYCEUM THEATRE. (J. K. Cookson, manager).—The second week of the Eugene Blair Stock Co. is a satisfactory one. "The Prisoner of Froth" was the bill and business was very good. "Two Orphans" week of 6, followed by "Camille."

Others: Marcel's living art studies, Gertrude Mansfield and Vary Wilbur, Geo. W. Day, the Dancing Howards, Fisher and Carroll, and the biograph. For week 6: Ezra Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins D. Fisher, Helen Reed Trio, the Girl With the Auburn Hair.

The performance closes with "A Hot Time in a New York Hotel." The olio: Brandon and Clare, the Magnolia Trio, Craig and Ardell, Mart and Kelly Hart, Kittle Wiley and Josselin Trio. Robie's Knickerbockers week 6. Watson's American Burlesquers next.

Park. is busily engaged preparing for the opening of his Summer resort at an early date. The annual benefit of Fred Conn, treasurer, and John Hicks, of the Opera House, will occur May 22. A vaudeville bill will be given. Will Drew, treasurer of the Star, was recently made the happy father of a bouncing boy. Manager Drew, of the Star, is therefore made a grandfather.

Dayton.—At the Victoria (C. Y. Miller, manager) the Theatrical Mechanics Association was tendered a benefit May 2, and a good crowd witnessed a clever vaudeville performance given by the Mackeys (Fred and Jeanie), John Lefevre, Marie De Lano, Harry Williams, Jeannette B. Freeman, Fred Bryant, Foster and Brannigan, the Buffalo Quartette, the Tossing Austins, and the Bros. Casad (Chas. and Billy). NEW YORK CITY.

Review and Comment. The season is steadily drawing to a close. Five theatres have already gone out of commission, the LYCEUM, SAVOY, MANHATTAN, THIRD AVENUE and STAR, the last named having been permanently stricken from the list. Several other houses will soon be dark, and a few hot nights will accelerate the closing movement all along the line. Last week there was a total lack of new productions, yet was the week not devoid of interest. The principal events were the return of Henrietta Crossman, in "Miss Nell," the removal of "Lovers Lane" to a new location, the farewell offering of the artists under the management of Maurice Grau, and the benefit performance of the Twelfth Night Club. Henrietta Crossman, having already presented "Miss Nell" at two metropolitan theatres this season, and probably believing in the old saw which says "there is luck in odd numbers," determined to test her fortune in a third house, and accordingly opened an engagement in that play at WALLACK'S on April 29. When in January last Miss Crossman personally dismissed her audience at the Savoy Theatre, and disappointed those who had assembled to witness her performance, we expressed the fear that her hasty action would result in the estrangement of many upon whose friendship she had established a claim. Knowing the temper of New York audiences of the better class, we set forth the reason for our fears, and they now seem to have had sufficient warrant. On the opening night last week Miss Crossman, who had been very extensively advertised, was greeted by a large audience, which, though by no means untiringly, was strangely apathetic during a considerable portion of the performance. Familiar faces were lacking, and there were few if any representatives of that class which in this city assembles to do honor to a successful star. The audience was composed of well dressed people, but they were not of the smart set, and it was obvious that a considerable proportion of those present were strangers visiting our city, and doubtless attracted by the fame won by Miss Crossman upon her road tour. We mention this matter through no unfriendliness toward Miss Crossman, for whom, on the contrary, we have sincere regard, but we feel impelled to press home the lesson which is herein contained, a lesson which we have frequently endeavored to teach, that players should always consider the rights of their patrons, and that women should leave in the hands of their male protectors the righting of their wrongs. We fear that Miss Crossman's return this season was a blunder, but we hope that all may be forgiven and forgotten prior to her next visit, and that she may begin a new reign over a host of loving subjects. "Lovers Lane," which for twelve weeks had held the boards at the MANHATTAN THEATRE, removed on April 29 to the REPUBLICAN, where it will continue its run. On April 29, a farewell performance was given by members of Maurice Grau's operatic forces and by the Bernhard-Coquelin company, also under his management. Acts from several operas were given, and Mme. Bernhardt and M. Coquelin, assisted by Mme. Boulanger and M. Chabert, presented a dramatic trifle entitled "La Fille de Le Beau Temps." At the EMPIRE THEATRE, afternoon of May 3, a performance was given in aid of the building fund of the Twelfth Night Club. Further mention of this event will be found elsewhere in this issue. The continued attractions for the week ending May 5 were: "Diplomacy" at the EMPIRE, Julia Marlowe at the CRITERION, Alvin Bingham at the ELROT, "San Toy" at DALY'S, "Captain Jinks" at the GARRICK, "The Price of Peace" at the BROADWAY, "Under Two Flags" at the GARDEN, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the ACADEMY OF MUSIC, "Florinda" at the CASINO, "On the Quiet" at the MADISON SQUARE, Chauncey Olcott at the FOURTEENTH STREET, "The Prima Donna" at the HERALD SQUARE, the stock company at the MURRAY HILL, "My Lady" at the VICTORIA, the stock company at the AMERICAN, "The Casino Girl" at the KNICKERBOCKER, and the Forepaugh-Sells Show at the MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, the two last named having closed on that date. The one week stands closing May 5 were: Williams and Walker at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE, "A Runaway Girl" at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE and "A Hot Old Time" at the METROPOLITAN. Variety entertainment was furnished at TOBY PASTOR'S, PROCTOR'S, KEITH'S UNION SQUARE, PROCTOR'S FIFTH AVENUE, the NEW YORK, the LONDON, the OLYMPIA, PROCTOR'S ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIFTH STREET, HURBIG & SEAMON'S, the DEWEY, the ATLANTIC GARDEN, and MINER'S BOWERY AND EIGHTH AVENUE. Drama and vaudeville constituted the attraction at PROCTOR'S PALACE, opera and vaudeville were given at KOSKOV & HAY, opera at the LION PALACE, Helene Odell remained at the IRVING PLACE, and "The Potato King" was continued at the Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre (J. Austin Fynes, general manager).—The last week of the "Madame Butterfly" opera, which has been playing for a large audience. Some changes were noticeable in the cast. Lewis McGold, who heretofore has been playing the role of Yamadori, appearing as Mr. Sharpless, the American consul, and Westropp Saunders assuming the role of Yamadori. These changes cannot be said to be improvements. Joseph Hart and Carrie De Mar were quite happy in their laughable skit, "Dr. Chaucer's Visit." The comic songs of Mr. Hart pleased the audience immensely, while the attractive appearance and sprightliness of the lady won for her many admirers. "A few minutes with the comedian and the comedienne," Clifford and Huth, proved a very enjoyable feature of the programme. The "chamberlains" gave a clever exhibition of lasso throwing and rope spinning. Preliminary canons, and the ventriloquism of Mr. Prele himself, elicited hearty applause. The remainder of the bill consisted of: The Mathews, jugglers; Howard and Linder, comedy duo; H. H. M. instrumentalists, and the kalatechnoscope. The Sunday evening concert was largely attended. Next week one of Mr. Proctor's stock companies will appear here in "The Woman Hater," a four act comedy, together with high class vaudeville features.

Keith's Theatre (E. F. Albee, general manager).—Clissie Loftus, back once more in the fold, with her deservedly famous act to serve as a potent background for her talents. Heretofore, the current programme, her reception on May 6, showed clearly how she has endeared herself to the amusement loving public and her return to her limitations was warmly welcomed. Clayton White and Marie Stuart, assisted by Belle Arvey, offered the play, "The Girl in the Red Dress," which, coupled with Miss Stuart's capable efforts, brought the contribution into emphatic favor. Edwin Milton Royle and Selma Fetter Royle revived the bright little sketch, "The Impudent," which, coupled with Selma's act, was a most enjoyable one. Harry Gilford as the Baron, made a most pronounced hit, and was allowed to withdraw only under strong protest, while the Willis family proved talented beyond question. Their act, going exceedingly well, Clissie's monkeys were clever to a marked degree, and Vernon, the ventriloquist, brought to the fore an act which was entertaining to the greatest extent. The sketch, "The Girl in the Red Dress," made an impression that must have pleased these performers greatly. The Herald Square Quartette succeeded in arousing a deal of enthusiasm. Frank and Gladys danced rimbly, and the favor for the latter was clearly merited. Hill and Whittaker, banjoists and vocalists, had an inning that brought entertainment to the audience and honor to themselves. Arvello proved a gymnast of ability, and was uncommonly talented in his methods. Mr. and Mrs. De Montval, French singers, and Russell and Le Van, singers, were likewise in evidence. The remarkably clear and entertaining views on the biograph kept this machine firmly established in favor, and the stereopticon still pays its part in the bill.

Proctor's Theatre (Tony Foster, manager).—Nat M. Wills, "The Happy Tramp," topped the bill this week, and his act was accorded on May 6 a reception as cordial as its undeniable worth merited. Bids Thomas and Lou Hall presented a sketch, which proved fully on a par with the capital playlets heretofore offered by this talented pair. Stanley and Wilson's contribution entitled "Before the Ball," was crowded with laughs, and received the happy rendering which these performers are so well able to give. While Knott and the Emersons duplicated the undeniably enviable success which they won at a recent metropolitan hearing, Fox and Foxie, the clown and dog, offered an excellent act, which ended in a dramatic style with the dog's leap from the top of a ladder. The two acts, Mr. and Mrs. De Montval, French singers, and Russell and Le Van, singers, were likewise in evidence. Proctor's Palace (J. Austin Fynes, general manager).—The third week of the combination of complete comedies, which high class vaudeville, was ushered in at Manager Proctor's uptown house Monday, May 6, to a crowded audience. The curtain raiser was the one act play, by Sydney Grundy, "In Honor Bound," thus cast: Sir George, Henryson; Arnold, Edith; Laurence, Tickleby; Martha, Disher; Maria, Margery Bonney; "The Baby, A. N. Infant," The Pug, By Himself. Both plays were staged under the personal supervision of Frederick Bond, the two plays being staged in a full and complete manner down to the smallest detail. Murray and Clara Lane, whose well trained voices were heard in the smallest detail, in operatic selections; Foreman and Howlett, banjo duettists; the kalatechnoscope and pictorial views of travel. The crowds present thoroughly enjoyed every part of the bill, as was evidenced by the cheeriest applause and laughter. It was played by little Mabel Taliaferro, Nora O'Brien, Ada Dwyer, Harold Russell, Frank Connor and Oscar Eagle.

Proctor's Theatre (J. Austin Fynes, general manager).—At this house, New York's first home of continuous vaudeville, the policy of bringing out variety acts on May 6 to P. F. Proctor's Stock Co. The two act musical comedy, "Cinderella at School," with specialties between the acts, was the initial offering, and the good sized audiences which attended Monday afternoon and evening greatly evidenced the popularity of the work is well known from its presentation in this city several years ago at another popular playhouse, at which time it had vogue. Mr. Proctor has secured a capable company, and under the direction of Frederick Bond the work has been given a good production. It is thus cast: Arthur Bicycle, Bertram Godfrey; Jack Polo, Lorrett Fraser; Lord Lawton, Henry Stanley; Prof. Kindergarten, Robert J. Ward; Syntax, Tom Hada; Mrs. Jenkinson, Charles Waite; Nibs, Marsh; Margaret Bland; Merope Mallow; Viola Fortescue; Psyche Persimmons; Florence Leslie; Zenobia Tropics; Bessie Fairbairne; Stalpenzil Sisters; Charlotte Ashton; Lotta Hyde; Pansy Pickles; Bernadette; The Pug, By Himself. Both plays were staged under the personal supervision of Frederick Bond, the two plays being staged in a full and complete manner down to the smallest detail. Preceding the plays and between the acts of "Confusion" the following novelties were introduced: W. H. Clement, in his novel ventriloquist sketch, "On the Sands"; J. K. Murray and Clara Lane, whose well trained voices were heard in the smallest detail, in operatic selections; Foreman and Howlett, banjo duettists; the kalatechnoscope and pictorial views of travel. The crowds present thoroughly enjoyed every part of the bill, as was evidenced by the cheeriest applause and laughter. The change of policy at the Palace has been a marked success from the start, the audiences having vastly improved, both in size and character. Next week, Woolson Morse's musical comedietta, "Cinderella at School," is the main attraction, with a strong array of vaudeville turns.

Academy of Music (Gilmore & Tompkins, managers).—Wm. A. Brady's spectacular "Uncle Tom's Cabin" started on May 6 upon the tenth week and last fortnight of its run. The audience performance is announced for 13, and souvenirs of the occasion are promised. Frank Hatch is now appearing as Phineas Fletcher, in place of Odell Williams, who has retired from the cast.

Criterion Theatre (C. B. Dillingham, manager).—Julia Marlowe, in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," is now in the seventeenth week of a very successful engagement. She will remain here four weeks longer and will close her season on Friday, May 31. A cablegram from Bordeaux, Fr., dated May 3, says: "The American cyclist, Major Taylor, continuing a series of victories in Belgium and France, won this afternoon the International Cycle race over a course of 2,000 metres, in 3m. 41s. The contest had been postponed from last evening, when it was to have been brought off under electric light. At the last moment the light failed, and the enormous crowd, greatly disappointed, smashed the railings and seats, piled them in a heap and made a bonfire of them. The police finally quelled the disorder, and the gate money was returned."

THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLISTS' UNION held a meeting at Alessandria, Italy, on Easter Monday, at which A. G. Batchelder, chairman of the board of control of the National Cycling Association of the United States, applied for the holding of the international championship meeting in 1902 in this country. It is stated that he received assurances that if the vote at the meeting in Berlin, Ger., in July next, did not send the championships to America, he would certainly be held here the following year. The rules of the I. C. U. stipulate that all time records above the distance of one mile must be made from a standing start, as they are in England and on the continent; consequently the bicycle race in this country above one mile from a flying start are not recognized by the union.

Taylor's time was not given in the cablegram.

THE GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION of Brooklyn and Long Island held an election last week with the following result: President, Albert H. Angell; first vice president, Frederick H. Vall; second vice president, Durand McLean; treasurer, T. Jeff Stevens; secretary, Edward Schwabach Jr.

RICHARD HOWELL, the veteran English professional cyclist, is reported to call at, or send his present address to, this office, who will send him an important letter from England awaits him. As this paragraph may not be seen by him, any one knowing his whereabouts will please communicate with this office.

EDOUARD TAYLOR, the featherweight French rider, is coming to this country this month, he sailing with A. G. Batchelder, chairman of the N. C. A. board of control, on May 3.

Smith's Death Accidental.

A cablegram from London, April 29, says: "The coroner's jury which has been investigating the death of Billy Smith, the Philadelphia pugilist, who was fatally injured on April 22, at the Manhattan Sporting Club, by Jack Roberts, in a contest for the 125lb championship of England, and who died on April 24, today rendered a verdict of accidental death. The coroner minutely examined the club officials, and some distinguished spectators of the contest. The hospital surgeon who attended Smith said that the appearance of the pugilist had been investigated, and the story that he had been drugged. All the testimony forthcoming tended to establish the fact that the pugilist was not drugged. Out of the 350 louts which have taken place at the National Sporting Club, this was the first in which a contestant had sustained serious injury." Smith was buried in Manor Park Cemetery, near London, 30, Roberts and a number of the members of the National Sporting Club attending the funeral.

Gardner "Pie" for McGovern.

Terry McGovern obtained an easy victory over Oscar Gardner in their second passage at arms, which took place at San Francisco, under the auspices of the Century Athletic Club, on Tuesday evening, April 30. Gardner was outclassed and outfought from the start, never being able to stall off McGovern's onslaughts, and being completely smothered with blows, from which he repeatedly went down, and in the third round was knocked clean through the ropes and among the spectators. He was repeatedly knocked down in the fourth round, the fourth finishing the fight, as Oscar could not rise. He was in great pain from a blow on the mark, to which was added, as he fell, a smash on the point of the jaw. When weighed in, McGovern's victory was 123 to 12. They fought for a purse of $5,000, of which $3,750 went to the winner. The referee was Harry Corbett.

MATTY MATTHEWS and TOM COCHIO engaged in a fist discussion before the Monarch Athletic Club, in Louisville, Ky., night of April 29, the battle lasting the twenty rounds for which it was scheduled, and the two thousand or so persons who witnessed it being well pleased with the return for their money. Referee English decided in favor of Matthews, which decision did not please the majority.

DAVE SULLIVAN and JACK MCCLELLAN agreed to fight a twenty-five round battle before the Southern Athletic Club, at Louisville, Ky., on Monday night, April 29, and the bout was of the liveliest description up to the twenty-first round, neither having much, if any, the best of the milling, but in that round Sullivan managed to effect lodgment for a crushing right hook on McClellan's jaw, which sent him to the floor and into the land of oblivion, he not recovering consciousness for some time after Sully had been proclaimed victor.

JACK TURNER, a notice of whose death appeared in our last issue, was buried from the family residence, 901 St. Paul Street, Rochester, N. Y., on Monday morning, April 29, many friends of the deceased attending. The pallbearers were members of the Queen Lodge, Sons of St. George, of which Turner was a member. The interment was in River side Cemetery.

TOM SHARKEY and a big fellow named Fred Russell, who was never heard of before, save locally, and probably never will be again, were matched to box ten rounds before the Colorado Athletic Club, of Denver, on the night of May 3. As expected, Sharkey, although by no means a clever lad, proved far the superior of the know little in front of him, whom he knocked out in the fourth round with a crack on the jaw.

MILWAUKEE.—That the Castle Square Opera Co. will return to Milwaukee annually for the next three years has been fully decided upon in view of the first engagement of this company, the "Pinafore," which has been left open to be determined upon later between President Savage and Manager Wachauer. Whether future seasons will be of four weeks or twice that length also remains to be determined. The bill for the closing week will be "Pinafore" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Aida." Standing room was in order several times the past week.

DAVIDSON THEATRE.—Manager Sherman Brown offers Stuart Robson, in "She Stoops to Conquer," for one performance Sunday, May 5, and "The Burgomaster" Sunday, 12. Madame Modjeska closed her season at this house April 30. George Clark, in "When We Were Twenty-one," filled in the last half of the week satisfactorily.

CONNECTICUT.

NEW HAVEN.—The theatrical season is fast approaching the stage where the really first class shows are closing, and this, with the near approach of the open air and out of door attractions, has a tendency to lessen the attendance at the playhouses here, despite all this, the business done at the local theatres during the week just closed has been simply phenomenal, due entirely to the unusually high class of attractions offered.

Locally the outlook for the winding up of the season is not discouraging, for the local managers have yet in store several excellent offerings. The season's business so far has been eminently satisfactory. Manager S. Z. Poll, of the Wonderland Theatre, will soon leave for a trip through Europe, visiting the principal cities of the continent, London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin, etc., and will make quite an extended stay in the home of his nativity, sunny Italy. His trip will be one combining business with pleasure.

He is expected to report on all the principal theatres and music halls of the European cities with a view of getting the best features of the modern playhouses, the ideas of which he will incorporate in the erection of his new theatre which will direct in this country directly opposite to his present house. He has recently secured additional land and will build a theatre here second to none in the country, combining all the advantages of up to date playhouses in Europe and America, and having a seating capacity of 1,800. While abroad Mr. Poll will also secure many of the leading European performers for his house, and will act in booking attractions for H. E. Keith and other first class managers as well as himself.

Esterbrook Leaps From Train.

Thomas J. Esterbrook, once a noted player, jumped from an express train on the Erie Railway April 30, while being taken to the State Asylum, at Middletown, N. Y., and died from the injuries sustained. When the train left Jersey City Esterbrook was in charge of a brother and a nephew. Suddenly, when the train was approaching Tuxedo, Esterbrook, without a word of warning, plunged through the window. He died the same evening. Esterbrook was possessed with many peculiarities, and his conspicuous figure attracted attention both on and off the ball field. He was well known to the patrons of the game in all the leading cities of the country. He was born at Staten Island, N. Y., about forty-two years ago, and played with the Albatross, West New Brighton, S. I., for several years before joining the Jersey Citys, in 1878. He remained with the latter two seasons. He began the season of 1880 with the Buffalo National League team, and after participating in sixty-three games he was released, at his own request, and finished the season with the Metropolitan club of this city. In 1881 he took part in one hundred and forty-four games with the Mets. In 1882 he signed with the Cleveland National League team and participated in forty-five games and was then released. He finished the season with the Mets. He remained with the latter until the end of 1884. In the early part of 1885 Manager James Mutrie wanted to transfer Esterbrook and Keefe to the New Yorks. To do so he took the pair to Bermuda. Before the vessel left New York he released them from the Metropolitan Club, and just before landing in New York on their return he signed them to New York contracts. This was done to prevent other clubs from negotiating with them. Esterbrook played with the New Yorks two seasons. In 1887 he was with the Metropolitan. In 1888 he was with the Indianapolis Club, of the National League, and the Louisville, of the American Association. In 1889 he was with the London International League team. In 1890 he began the season with the New Yorks, and after participating in forty-five championship games, he was released. Since then he has been playing with local semi-professional teams, and up to within a year or so ago captained a team at Staten Island called the Mets. He was one of the most graceful players on the ball field, but was not considered a reliable batsman.

Gossip Around the Ball Field.

James McKay, one of the pitchers of the Australian baseball team that made a tour of the United States several seasons ago, died Feb. 28, at Melbourne, Victoria. He was the first in Victoria to master the art of curve pitching, and was one of the pioneers of baseball in that colony and in Australia, although an American by birth. However, he learned at Australia all he knew about baseball.

On April 28, at Detroit, Waldron, of the Milwaukee, made five safe hits, and Casey, of the home team, made four.

Hartman, of the Chicago, made four safe hits in a game against the Cleveland, April 28, at Chicago.

It required twelve innings before the champion Brooklyn could defeat the Hoboken by a score of 4 to 1, April 28, at Hoboken, N. J.

The Dayton defeated the Columbus team by 7 to 0, April 27, at Dayton, O. The losers made only one safe hit off Dunham.

Clarkson, of Harvard, struck out sixteen Dartmouth batsmen in the game between these teams April 26, at Cambridge, Mass. Harvard winning by 4 to 2. The losers made only four safe hits off Clarkson.

Matthewson allowed the Philadelphia only three safe hits April 26, at Philadelphia, the New Yorks winning by 3 to 2.

During the preliminary practice at Modena Cal. April 28, F. E. Kirkpatrick collided with another player and was almost instantly killed.

DOTY & BRILL, No. 43 W. 28th, N. Y.

When one team of the American League needs a player another supplies him. Detroit has transferred Lockhead to the Athletics of Philadelphia. What does this mean? Syndicate ball.

McBride and Harley, of the Cincinnati, made four safe hits each in the game against St. Louis May 2, at St. Louis.

Collins and Parent, of the Boston American League team, made four safe hits each in the game with the Athletics May 2, at Philadelphia.

Corcoran, of the Cincinnati, accepted all of ten chances at short on May 2, at St. Louis.

Keeler, of the Brooklyn, made four safe hits in the game with the Philadelphia at Brooklyn, May 3.

Matthewson, of the New Yorks, allowed the Boston only four safe hits on May 3, at Boston. The wind greatly favored the batsmen, for several of the hits charged against the pitchers would have been easy out on a less windy day. Matthewson has pitched four games for the New Yorks and has won them all; the only ones they won up to May 6, inclusive.

Wallace, of St. Louis, made four safe hits, including a triple banger, in a game against the Cincinnati May 4, at St. Louis.

While the St. Louis team was at bat in the last half of the tenth inning of the contest with Cincinnati at St. Louis, May 4, the game was called on account of the burning of the grand stand, pavilion and office building. The fire spread with amazing rapidity, but the spectators acted coolly and got out of the grounds without injury. The loss will amount to fully $30,000, partially covered by insurance.

Gilbert and Hallman, of the Milwaukee, made five safe hits each, and Waldron, of the same team, four, in the game with Chicago at Milwaukee, May 5.

Ganzel, of the New Yorks, made five safe hits, and Smith, of the same team, made four in an exhibition game off the pitching of Norton, of the Hoboken team, May 5, at Hoboken.

Because he could not stand the abuse of National League players, Umpire Harry Colgan, of Homestead, Pa., resigned on May 2 from that league's staff, and William Nash, the veteran ex-professional player, succeeded him.

The Metropolitan Handicap.

Probably twenty-five thousand persons, a large proportion of whom were women, gathered at the Morris Park course on Saturday afternoon, May 4, the opening day of the Spring meeting of the Westchester Racing Association, the special attraction being the first classical event of the season in the East, the Metropolitan Handicap. The weather was fine, the track fast and the only thing that interfered in any way with the comfort of the spectators, aside from the crush, was a stiff and somewhat chilly wind. The favorite for the star event was Star Bright, W. C. Whitney's speedy colt, but he sadly failed to equal the expectations of his supporters, finishing seventh in line, while Clarence H. McKee's good horse, Banaster, against odds, won on offer, did the trick, well ridden by Odum, although hard pressed by Wyndham Walden's great four year old, Contestor, out of whom that clever jockey, McKee, got all there was in, being beaten by a scant head only. It was rather astonishing that so good a horse as the son of Parandole-Blessing should have been so little fancied by the majority of the speculative fraternity, considering his record, and it is safe to say that never again this season will his backers be able to get such good odds against him. McKee deserves to share credit with Odum for a race well ridden. Summary:

The new challenger's superiority in reaching, sailing close hauled and in beating was most marked, while the old boat, in her altered trim, proved the better of the two in the hardest of the breeze. Mr. Lipton expressed himself delighted with the performance of Shamrock II, and said that he was absolutely the most perfect yacht on the other side of the Atlantic. He is of the opinion that there should be only seconds dividing the contestants in the international races.

I., on Monday evening, May 6, at 8:30 o'clock, in the presence of a large party of New York yachtsmen and many other invited guests. COOK AND SONORA.

OUR BURLESQUE TRANSFORMATION SCENE biggest hit ever known, so pirates beware; hands off. We have it fully copyrighted. Two people are trying to do our curtain bit now; we will not mention names, it would advertise them, but the public, managers and performers all know it belongs to COOK AND SONORA. Remember, we have it patented, and if they do not stop it it will cost them some money. We are the originators of everything we do. Twenty minutes of solid laughter and applause, and CLARA SONORA has three beautiful new gowns which make a great contrast in our e-centric act. Boston Music Hall again this week, our third trip in three months; the record at Tony Pastor's, as every one knows, eight times this season; six weeks at Percy Williams' in Brooklyn this season; the biggest hit ever went into Koster & Bial's with one of the strongest White Rat Shows. Our permanent address COOK AND SONORA, 216 East 14th St., New York City, or WHITE RATS OF AMERICA, 1155 Broadway New York City.

"THE HOUSE OF HITS" SECURES SIX FIRST NIGHT HITS!

We Were Happy Once Together, Kate and I

LOTTIE GILSON'S Enormous First Night Hit, by MAX S. WITT and ROBERT F. RODEN. A Ballad whose exquisite pathos and beauty brought back to the audience's mind the universal favorite, "My Little Georgia Rose," to whose favor it will surely succeed.

PARTHENIA.

The Great Coon Song known in New York as the "Coon classic." ELEANOR FALKE'S greatest hit in years, with the most fascinating melody of the age.

JUST AT THE TURN OF THE TIDE.

Already in its fiftieth thousand, CHARLES SHACKFORD'S latest Ballad stands unequalled for individual, beautiful melody. Every vocalist should possess it.

THE FORTUNE TELLING MAN.

Not only a "First Night" but an "Every Night" with the Princes of Colored Comedy, WILLIAMS and WALKER, in their Comedy, "The Sons of Ham." Full of genuine humor and originality.

A PICTURE WITHOUT A FRAME.

HAUDE COURTNEY'S Greatest Hit Since "Georgia Rose." Illustrated by the Great Teams, PIERCE and EGBERT, BENNETT and RICH, FALKE and LILLIAN.

DAVY JONES' LOCKER.

JANE! JANE! JANE!

JOHNNIE CARROLL'S Latest Waltz Song, with a Quaint Chorus, so Catchy and Jingly, that once you hear it, you're bound to retain it.

WHEN THEY PLAY, "GOD SAVE THE KING."

BRYAN and MORSE'S Great Narrative Ballad, based on the fact that "AMERICA" and "GOD SAVE THE KING" are sung to the same melody. This song works up to a climax in the Chorus that is wonderful, and the counter melodies are so startling, that the audience breaks into cheers nightly.

EVERY DARKEY HAD A RAGLAN ON.

BROWN and ALLEN'S Side Splitting Comic Idea, so new and funny that it has created a sensation, and requests for copies are pouring in by the thousands. A Hit with Jane Whitbeck and Laura Comstock.
